Elizabeth Hayward

Elizabeth was born on the 20\textsuperscript{th} of July 1773 in Stepney. She worked as a clog maker and in December 1786 she stole from her employer a linen gown, a silk bonnet and a bath cloak. She then sold these for money.

Elizabeth was sentenced to 7 years and transportation. She was only 13 years at the time, making her the youngest convict. She sailed on the Lady Penrhyn which had the worst conditions of the ships as it was meant to have only 70 convicts but instead had over 100.

Once at Sydney Cove she was assigned to the wife of the chaplain and was a servant in their household.

In 1789 she was sentenced to 30 lashes for insolence to Mr Johnson. She later went on to have children, own land and died at 56.
